per as a symbol of religion and government and had seen the entire people maintain perfect discipline after they had been ordered to lay down their arms.

My initial impression was that he was about the average height of the Japanese, that he looked clean and that he talked with emphasis. He looked straight into my face as he spoke, eyeing me through rimless spectacles.

Palace Heavily Guarded Outside the walled enclosure it took not only a written pass but the presence of a military police headquarters officer to get me by armed khaki-clad American guards.

Asked whether he thought the social and educational system of Japan should be changed and what his ideas were as to the future of Japan Emperor Hirohito expressed himself in favor of a constitutional monarchy like that of the British.

Asked whether he had intended that the war rescript should be used as General Tojo had used it to launch the attack on Pearl Harbor, which brought the United States into the war, the answer was brief.
